Manfred M. Fischer, Peter Nijkamp, Yorgos Papageorgiou : Spatial Choices and Processes (Studies in Regional Science and Urban Economics) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Spatial Choices and Processes (Studies in Regional Science and Urban Economics):

Spatial decisions and processes are fundamental to the understanding of spatial structure. In the earlier stages of spatial analysis proposed explanations were typically on the aggregate, phenomenological level. Now a new field has evolved and matured which calls for a deeper understanding of spatial structure with a particular emphasis on spatial decisions and processes. The present volume serves as a guide and as an anthology by discussing a wide variety of new modelling approaches, techniques and issues related to spatial decision and processes and drawing these seemingly disparate, but interlocking parts together.
