my house in 2007 - at any cost. Now, nobody will buy it. One thing is certain - never buy a book on generic financial advice, unless you want to make the writer rich. 6 of 6 people found the following review helpful. The forecast was wrong. By M. Imeny. The forecast was that we will have another internet boom for the seven years starting 2005. You can judge by yourself the rest. 10 of 15 people found the following review helpful. Want to look into the future? By Jeffrey E. Ellis. Harry Dent has made his reputation writing about the economic effects of the Baby Boom generation. Everything this generation of 73 million people has touched, has been changed. As this group has grown up, had children and now, begin to retire, they have changed the market conditions, products, and services for their generation. Their buying, consumption, and investing habits are fairly predictable. By analyzing their tastes, needs, and preferences and making some simple economic assumptions, we can see with a high degree of predictability, certain market patterns emerge. Dent predicts that between 2005 and 2009, we will see: Dow Jones of 30,000 - 40,000. NASDAQ - 12,000 - 15,000. Inflation - 3% or less. Interest Rates: lower than current levels. Strong economic growth. Investment Sectors: Financial Services, Health Care, Technology, selected international markets. Strong growth in certain real estate markets. Whether you agree with a DJIA of 30,000 or not, this work is persuasive, thought-provoking, and compelling. If Harry is right, we are about to see the greatest leg of a roaring bull market our generation has seen. HS Dent's work is essential for every investor.

For over fifteen years, New York Times bestselling author Harry S. Dent, Jr., has been uncannily accurate in predicting the financial future. In his three previous works, Dent predicted the financial recession of the early nineties, the economic expansion of the mid-nineties, and the financial free-for-all of 1998-2000. The Next Great Bubble Boom -- part crystal ball, part financial planner -- offers a comprehensive forecast for the next two decades, showing new models for predicting the future behavior of the economy, inflation, large- and small-cap stocks, bonds, key sectors, and so on. In taking a look at past booms and busts, Dent compares our current state to that of the crash of 1920-21, and the years ahead of us to the Roaring Twenties. Dent gives advice on everything from investment strategies to real estate cycles, and shows not only how bright our future will be but how best to profit from it. Dent gives us all something to look forward to, including: The Dow hitting 40,000 by the end of the decade. The Nasdaq advancing at least ten times from its October 2001 lows to around 13,500, and potentially as high as 20,000 by 2009. Another strong advance in stocks in 2005, with a significant correction into around September/October 2006. The Great Boom resurging into its final and strongest stage in 2007, and even more fully in 2008, lasting until late 2009 to early 2010. Dent's amazing ability to track and forecast our financial future is renowned, and here he takes that ability to the next level, showing not only what our economy will look like but also how it will affect us as individuals, as organizations, and as a culture. From the upcoming wealth revolution to the essential principles of entrepreneurial success, the book describes a new society where economic and philanthropic development go hand in hand. In The Next Great Bubble Boom, Dent shows not only how the economic growth of the late 1990s was a prelude to the true great boom right around the corner but how all of us can reap its benefits.

All investors should take notice. From the Inside Flap. Harry S. Dent has been among the most successful forecasters of his time: His books The Great Boom Ahead and The Roaring 2000s predicted the 1990s boom ahead of anyone else. In this new, provocative look at the coming years, Dent again casts his discerning contrarian eye on what he sees as the good times to come and the woes to follow. Among his key predictions: bull; A third and final bubble takes the Dow to 35,000 to 40,000 and the Nasdaq to 13,000 by late 2009 or early 2010. bull; A second technology boom brings cellular, Internet, and broadband connections to 90% of U.S. households by 2009. bull; Inflation falls into early 2006 and rises mildly into 2009; then we see deflation between 2010 and 2023. bull; Another devastating crash occurs between 2010 and 2012, which ushers in a thirteen-year bear market into 2022. bull; Technology, financial services, health care, and Asia will be the best sectors from 2005 to 2009. Long-term bonds, health care, and Asia will be the best after 2009.
